THE ARMENIAN AWAKENING

By LEON ARPEE

Beginning with the "Dark Ages" of Armenian history, the author traces the religious attitude and the struggles of this people from the time of the introduction of Christianity into their midst by Gregory the Illuminator.

It is a matter of common knowledge to all who are familiar with the Armenian struggle for religious freedom, that political forces have been a strong factor in the persecution to which this people has been periodically subjected. All the side lights which the condition of European politics could throw on the situation have been employed by the author, and his sympathetic treatment leaves the reader with a clear understanding of the various motives for the frequent outbreaks against the Armenians, which have aroused the Christian world.

NEW BOOKS

Readings in the Economics of War. By J. MAURICE CLARK, Associate Professor of Political Economy, University of Chicago; WALTON H. HAMILTON, Professor of Economic Institutions, Amherst College; and HAROLD G. MOULTON, Associate Professor of Political Economy, University of Chicago. 708 pages, cloth; $3.00, postage extra (weight 2 lbs. 8 oz.).

The latest volume in the series Materials for the Study of Economics. This volume interprets the economic aspects of the war and indicates what must be the future organization of industrial society. The editors have compassed the major portion of the literature of the world for their material.

Readings in Industrial Society. By L. C. MARSHALL, Professor of Political Economy and Dean of the School of Commerce and Administration, University of Chicago. 1106 pages, cloth; $3.50, postage extra (weight 4 lbs.).

Published in the series Materials for the Study of Business. This book furnishes a foundation for a thorough understanding and intelligent handling of industrial questions. The fact that all phases of the subject are discussed, each by an expert in his particular line, renders the volume unexcelled in usefulness.

The Nature of the Relationship between Ethics and Economics. By CLARENCE E. AYRES, Instructor in Philosophy, University of Chicago. 72 pages, paper covers; 50 cents (postpaid 54 cents).

Philosophic Studies, No. 8. An analysis of the underlying conceptions of the nature and function of the sciences under consideration.

The Geology of Vancouver and Vicinity. By EDWARD M. J. BURWASH. 14 halftones, 10 line drawings, and two colored maps. 112 pages, paper covers; $1.50, postage extra (weight 13 oz.).

A thorough geological survey of the area.

The Book of Revelation. By SHIRLEY J. CASE, Professor of Early Church History and New Testament Interpretation, University of Chicago. 44 pages, paper covers; 50 cents (postpaid 52 cents).

One of the new Outline Bible-Study courses presenting the real historical facts regarding the Book of Revelation. This course of study clears away all the accumulation of temporary theories of individual men and of the different sects.

Realities of the Christian Religion. By GERALD B. SMITH, Professor of Christian Theology, and THEODORE G. SOARES, Professor of Homiletics and Religious Education and Head of the Department of Practical Theology, University of Chicago. 64 pages, paper covers; 50 cents (postpaid 52 cents).

Another new Outline Bible-Study course which deals in a vital manner with the religious questions of our own day.

The New Orthodoxy. By EDWARD S. AMES, Associate Professor of Philosophy, University of Chicago. 138 pages, cloth; $1.00, postage extra (weight 12 oz.).

A popular, constructive interpretation of man's religious life in the light of the learning of scholars and in the presence of spiritual heroes.

The Life of Paul. By BENJAMIN W. ROBINSON, Professor of New Testament Interpretation and Theology, Chicago Theological Seminary. 264 pages, cloth; $1.25, postage extra (weight 1 lb. 14 oz.).

A popular biography of Paul in close relation with the life of his time. In Paul is seen the same spirit which today impels men to start out for other lands to give their all that the nations may have liberty and light.

A military victory is necessary but is it enough?

“ . . . . The common man is fighting for a world in which wars like the present cannot occur again. It is the right use of victory after it is attained that counts.—THE DIAL, July 18, 1918

RECENTLY THE DIAL has extended its editorial policy to include the discussion of reconstruction after the war, particularly as it applies to American conditions. Week by week those minds most alert to the forces making toward a new order attack the problems of industrial, educational, and international readjustment.

AT the same time THE DIAL remains the only critical survey of the whole field of contemporary letters. It reviews as they come from the press those books which no informed person can ignore. For each book it selects the critic best qualified by his special knowledge, his point of view, and his readability.

Broadly, THE DIAL's policy is one of free inquiry and liberal interpretation. It believes there is need for fresh examination of the texture of American life—as revealed in our art, our theater, our books, our social institutions. It publishes articles on all these subjects, judging contemporary tendencies and old survivals in terms of our growing experience and our new insights. It is hard-hitting, yet tolerant; authoritative, yet without bias.
